ONLINE PROFESSIONALISM & NETWORKING

Employers are checking how you present yourself on the web. Social media can help or hurt your chances of getting an internship or job. Having a professional online presence can inform an employer your unique qualifications. These sites are becoming an important tool to build your network. Your network is anyone with whom you can create a mutually beneficial professional relationship.

What Are Your Networking Tools?

- Résumé & Cover Letter
- Professional Summary

Why Social Media?

- LinkedIn allows users to connect with previous employers, search for jobs, and showcase experience.
- Twitter is a way to stay connected to people and industry news in real-time.

- Blogs are a way for you to show your expertise and stand out in your field.

Who Is In Your Network?

- Visiting Recruiters & Alumni
- Supervisors & Coworkers
- Relatives & Neighbors
- Friends
- Professors & Mentors
- Professional Organizations & Conferences
- Online Connections

DID YOU KNOW...

The Career Center can help find employment anywhere...

- eRecruiting lists jobs posted by the Career Center and Experience, lists jobs posted throughout the nation.
- Book of Lists have employers in cities across the US
